

Advanced GastroPlus[®] DMPK & Clinical Pharmacology Workshop

February 27 - 28, 2020 in Redwood City, California

Who should attend?

This is an advanced course – a prerequisite is familiarity with setting up and running basic GastroPlus simulations, including database & support file structures, basic inputs for physicochemical & pharmacokinetic parameters, and basic physiology options for human & animal simulations.

This course was designed for scientists working in:

- Preclinical pharmacokinetics & pharmacodynamics
- Clinical pharmacokinetics & pharmacodynamics
- Interactive processes of absorption (passive and carrier-mediated), metabolism in the gut and other tissues and whole-body distribution affect PK and PD.

Past GastroPlus workshop attendees have commented that the interaction & networking among industry, government, and academic scientists is an important and valuable part of the experience!

What will you learn?

- screening small compound libraries for absorption (transcellular & paracellular) from chemical structure and in vitro data.
- recognizing when to use PBPK vs. standard compartmental PK models
- predicting first-in-human doses with available preclinical and in vitro data (IVIVE)

You should also be able to communicate readily with the groups that produce both preclinical and clinical data to express your data needs as well as present your results clearly to project leaders and management.

You will gain basic experience with:

- recognizing when to use PBPK vs. standard compartmental PK models
- tracking parent and metabolite concentrations through multiple pathways, in plasma and tissues

How will the workshop operate?

Laptop computers will be provided with GastroPlus preloaded along with all data files needed to run the case studies. Continental breakfast, snack breaks, and lunch will be provided each day.

Where will this be held?
